Red Flag Unionists Cause Riot At Pier, Gandhi's Followers Resent Insults

By C. S. DE ANDRADE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BOMBAY, Aug. 29.—While his followers mixed in battle with a band of die-hard Indian extremists, Mahatma M. K. Gandhi, leader of the Indian nationalists, sailed for London today aboard the Steamer Rajputana for the round table conference which is to evolve a new federal constitution for India.

The battle, in which at least twenty persons were injured, occurred when a group of Red Flag Unionists assembled at the pier to protest against Gandhi's departure.

Battle Occurs

Shouts of "Down with Gandhi" were heard above the roar of cheers that went up for the emaciated champion of Indian freedom from the throats of his supporters. The Nationalists immediately rallied to the support of Gandhi and silenced the Oppositionists in a brief but bloody battle.

Gandhi's trip from the Bombay railway station to the waterfront was a triumphal procession. Thousands of white-garbed Nationalists lining the streets threw garlands of flowers in the path of his car.

Arriving at the pier where the Rajputana was ready to sail, Gandhi found additional thousands of his followers, gathered in a tightly packed mass to bid him farewell.

"It" Girl Of Soviets "Hick" Girl In U. S.

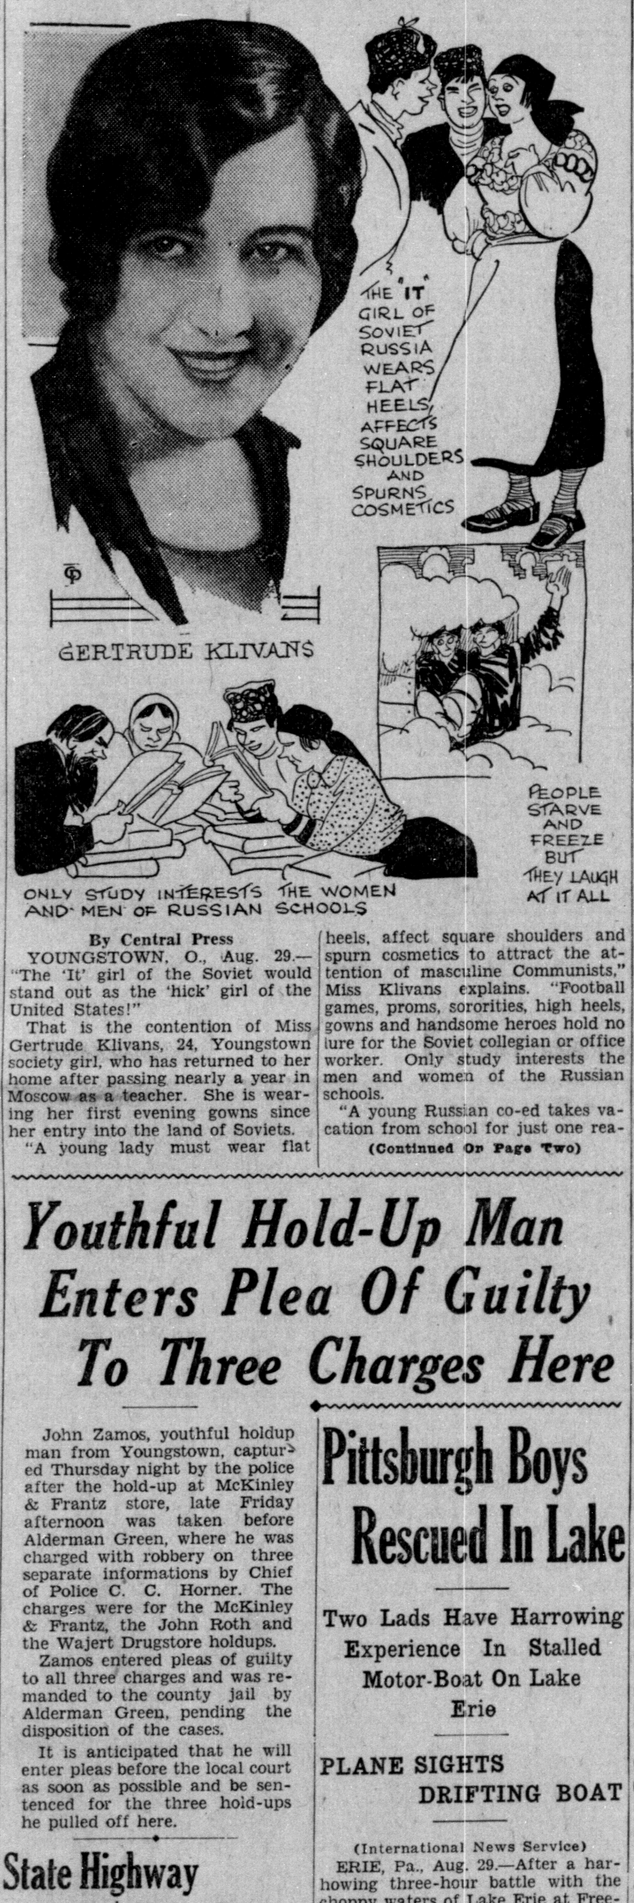
TELLS HOW YOUNG FOLK LOVE THERE



By Central Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 29.—"The 'It' girl of the Soviet would stand out as the 'hick' girl of the United States!"

That is the contention of Miss Gertrude Klivans, 24, Youngstown society girl, who has returned to her home after passing nearly a year in Moscow as a teacher. She is wearing her first evening gowns since her entry into the land of Soviets.

"A young lady must wear flat heels, affect square shoulders and spurn cosmetics to attract the attention of masculine Communists," Miss Klivans explains. "Football games, proms, sororities, high heels, gowns and handsome heroes hold no lure for the Soviet collegian or office worker. Only study interests the men and women of the Russian schools.

Lindy Plans To Return In Plane

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Aug. 29—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh called at the Russian embassy here today to express to the Russian ambassador his thanks for the cordial treatment accorded him during his stay at Petropavlovsk. He later went to the Chinese legation to request permission to fly to China.

He and Mrs. Lindbergh were scheduled to be guests of honor at a banquet given by the American-Japanese society tonight.

Invitations have been received by the Lindberghs in such number since their arrival here that they have been forced to decline some of them among them bids to a Geisha party by Nichi-Nichi, Tokyo newspaper.

In answer to an invitation by steamship agents to return to the United States on their lines, the flying colonel indicated that he intended to go home by air.

"Why travel on steamships when we have a ship of our own," he said.

The informality of Lindbergh's attire while making his calls has pleased the Tokyo public. He has visited the highest government officials in ordinary business clothes and, as is his custom, hatless.

Powers Has Repudiated 'Confession'

Report Says That Accused Man Has Executed About Face

NO STATEMENT IS MADE BY PROBERS

(International News Service)

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 29—Executing a startling right-about-face, Harry F. Powers, matrimonial bureau Romeo, this afternoon was reported to have repudiated an early police announcement that he had confessed to the killing of Mrs. Asta Eicher, Illionis widow, and her three children.

The repudiation was first rumored when, after hours of questioning this morning, no formal announcement had come from detectives who were grilling Powers who courted scores of women throughout the country under the alias of "Cornelius Pierson."

Refreshed by a few hours sleep, Powers was taken into the inquisition chamber this morning and the grilling immediately resumed. The prophesied "clean breast statement" which police said Powers had promised this morning was not forthcoming.

Several detectives were conducting a scorching cross-questioning of the prisoner. One of the detectives, on emerging from the room, was reported to have said Powers had repudiated statements attributed to him by police.

NEW DEVELOPMENTS IN GRUESOME CASE

Investigate Further At Scene Of Finding Of Bodies Of Missing Family

By LOUIS MILLER.
International News Service Staff Correspondent

CLARKSBURG, W. VA., Aug. 29—A series of gruesome finds today indicated that Mrs. Asta Eicher and her three children who were fiendishly murdered, allegedly by Harry Powers, first were hanged and later their bodies buried in a slimy drainage ditch.

The new theory supports already advanced.
the strangulation solution

New Developments

In the order of their importance, the clues were:

Bones resembling a human wrist and a human finger. These were discovered in the smoke-blackened chimney, sole remnant of a home once owned by Floyd Golden and destroyed by fire.

A rope with small bits of flesh adhering.

A wire wound around a rafter in the cellar of the "murder garage."

Starved and Hanged

Police believe the victims were starved and hanged, their bodies buried and attempts made to obliterate the clues found today.

Powers, awaking in his jail cell, was hastened into "solitary" by Sheriff W. B. Grimm. The sheriff said he believed Powers was "ready to talk now" and that a confession was momentarily expected. Until Powers makes his formal statement, Grimm said he would not be permitted to confer with his attorney.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 29.—While four bodies—those of Mrs. Asta Eicher and her three children

"CORNELIUS O. PIERSON"

—lay buried under his garage with decomposition well advanced, Harry Powers, alleged slayer and racketeering lover broker of the matrimonial agencies, went calmly ahead on new campaigns d'amour.

Startling developments tumbled over each other today as Powers,—"Connie Pierson" to his many mail-order loves—slept deeply in the county jail after confessing, police said, that he had slain the wealthy widow and the children, Greta, 14.

Observance of daylight savings time is only arbitrary and there is no reason why the change cannot be made if desired.

Announcement that digging of coal will be resumed at the strip mine of the New Castle Mining and Clay Company under arrangement with the welfare department of the county, on Monday, provides a chance for many homes to be supplied with a winter's supply of fuel without cost. Digging by those who will be required to use this means of getting their fuel supply for the winter, should be started at once, so that it will not be necessary to work at this task in the bad weather experienced later in the fall and winter.

New Castle police executed a commendable piece of work in their capture of the lone bandit who held up the McKinley and Frantz store, and who later confessed to several other robberies of a similar nature. Effective police work is the surest method of calling a halt to robberies and other crime outbreaks.

Probe Story Of Broker On His Kidnaping

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Charles M Rosenthal, wealthy young broker, was to be questioned again today by police about his amazing story of how he was kidnaped. His mother was reported to have paid $50,000 ransom for his release.

Rosenthal turned up without notice yesterday and told police he had been kept in a dark flat for 17 days after a girl lured him into the hands of his captors.

Rosenthal's family would not admit the ransom was paid but police insisted the kidnapers had escaped with the $50,000.

End Survey Of Highway Fill

State Engineers Complete Test Drilling In Conneaut Marsh Sink-Hole

According to unofficial information at the scene of the Conneaut Marsh fill on the Perry highway, the survey made by engineers into the characteristics of the land at that point is complete.

It is stated that 120 test-holes, ranging in depth up to 114 feet, have been completed, which will enable the engineers to draw an accurate picture of the geological foundation of the fill. By this means it will be possible to compute within a reasonable degree of accuracy, how much material will be required to complete the structure for the solid roadbed.

The test-holes were drilled in such a manner that the type of sub-soils and action of filled material could be definitely ascertained. The findings will form the basis for the future course of the Department of Highway in completing the work.

Chief Engineer Frank R. Layng of the Bessemer & Lake Erie railroad, one of the engineers making the study, said today that the official report of the survey would be made public from Harrisburg.

And how do Russian young men compare with American young men?

"Suppose it's raining outside, I'm alone in the house. I'm lonely. At the door stand two young men, one Russian, a senior at the Moscow university; the other is a Harvard senior—which would I prefer as company for the evening?

"The Russian, of course. In the last ten months I've met many Russian students, I taught English in one of the classes, and when I was at Radcliffe I met many Harvard seniors.

"I'd prefer the Russian because he's more mature, more intelligent, not so flippant and doesn't neck.

Miss Klivans decided to visit Russia while in Japan, on a round-the-world tour. She deserted the party and entered Siberia. Three days after her arrival in Moscow she obtained a job teaching English. ### Personnel Of Fuel Tax Bureau Is Cut Down As Result Of System Change

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 29.—Due to the reduced personnel necessary for collection of the gasoline tax, the Department of Revenue today announced the dismissal of 58 employes from the Bureau of Lquid Fuels tax.

Formerly the tax was collected from 25,000 retailers but under the act which became effective June 1 the distributors, of whom only 547 are licensed, make the returns.

Shortly after the beginning of the present administration 300 employes were added to the fuel tax bureau in the drive to collect delinquent accounts. The normal personnel of the bureau after the new act begins to function should not exceed more than 150, so that additional dismissals are expected.

"The regrettable feature is that so large a number of employes, who have performed their duties so well and faithfully, should find themselves out of work through no fault of their own," a statement from the governor's office said in announcing the dismissal. "As the work of the administration develops and effort will be made to place these men and women in other departments."

BIBLE CLASS MEN ENTERTAIN WIVES

The weather man was most agreeable Friday and gave the Men's Bible class of the Third United Presbyterian church an ideal evening for their annual outing and corn roast and at 6:30 there were 150 members and their wives sat down to a "feed" that was some spread. The corn had matured to just the right degree and the rest of the menu was in keeping, thanks to the forethought and planning of Floyd Book, chairman of the social committee.

Prior to the dinner the men indulged in horse shoe pitching and a game of ball, although these exercises were not necessary to whet their appetites as the aroma of the corn, coffee and hot dogs was wafted to their nostrils.

Concluding dinner Charles Harris, chairman of the entertainment committee, did his stuff and the pep singing was all that one could wish for and the trees about Lakewood Beach rang with the merry voices. Mr. Harris also pleased the group with a number of solos.

The Book-Leyde quartet added to the enjoyment of the evening with a number of vocal selections and David Jones, a member of the quartet, with his little guitar, sang a number of solos that called forth much applause. Frank Candiota and his mandolin kept the feet stirring as he played number after number.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Marshall were special guests.

Rev. S. B. Copeland, pastor of the church, is teacher of the class and the most able president is J. W. Rupert.

Thanks were expressed to Harry Thomas for the manner in which he handled the transportation of the group.

THIS IS THE TIME FOR WISE BUYING

THE fact that depositors in the savings banks of New York state have accumulated over $5,000,000,000 has led Walter H. Bennett, president of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank, to issue a statement urging persons who have surplus money to spend part of it in a reasonable amount of "wise buying." By that he means the purchase of desirable articles at fair prices. There is no need to name the kind of goods that may be so bought now. One can go into any store blindfolded and be almost sure to pick up a bargain. Not in years has it been possible to get so much for a dollar. This should make the prospect still more alluring is the certainty that this state of affairs can not continue indefinitely.

But Mr. Bennett's purpose in urging prudent people to spend part of their savings now is that it will improve economic conditions and hasten the return to normality. He makes it clear that his advice is not a departure from the traditional savings bank counsel of thrift. Indeed, there is nothing new in it. Prudent financiers have always counselled sensible buying after a reserve has been set aside for possible emergencies. Former President Coolidge some time ago defined thrift as the saving of money in order that we may spend it. He meant, of course, that it should be saved in days of prosperity in order that it might be spent advantageously in times of need. Mr. Bennett reminds us that "thrift" is as different from hoarding as courage is from fear." He realizes that the world is too much dominated by fear; and fear, we might add, should not be confounded with prudence.

It is perfectly apparent that trade improvement can come only with increased consumer buying. Saving bank depositors represent a large section of the consumer. Says Mr. Bennett: "In this state alone savings depositors have accumulated over $5,000,000,000. If, as a group, they decided to use simply the interest on this sum for wise buying during 1931, it would mean, at 3½ per cent, $175,000,000 of consumer buying, and from one state only. Our advice will more than serve its purpose if it helps to put $100,000,000 or $2,000,000 into circulation in New York state, and in that way to start industry moving a little faster before winter."

This counsel is so good that it deserves the widest circulation in every section of the country. It is "a common sense way of keeping men at work." It may well be called the gospel of sane courage as preached by a man who knows what he is talking about.

MORE STOCKHOLDERS

When that tragic "Black October" caught thousands of speculators short the national lament, aside from that of the individual victims, was that billions in securities were passing from the hands of the many into the vaults of the few. Although few of the losers had ever had the securities actually in their possession the public thought it saw the end of the widespread distribution of wealth.

Many, it is true, came out of the orgy of speculation without a share, or a bond to call their own, but the collapse of the market did not take good securities out of general circulation. If anything, it distributed them over a much wider investor field.

On December 31, 1929, 58 leading corporations had a little more than four million stockholders. Eighteen months later they had more than five and a half million.

The passage of securities from the hands of the few into the hands of the many is a wholesome phenomenon. If concentration of wealth is to be deplored, its dissemination is in the same measure gratifying; and every substitution of an investor for a speculator is a step toward business recovery.

Wider distribution of securities at this time shows that many large holders, forced to unload, found enough savings in the country's banks to take their surplus holdings off their hands. It also signifies that the new little investor has been able to hold on in anticipation of higher prices when prosperity returns.

DO-X FINALLY AT NEW YORK

Safe in New York waters is the Do-X, the huge flying boat which left Germany almost a year ago. Her voyage was undertaken as a test of the ability of monster seaplanes to cross the Atlantic safely—to engage in regular passenger and light-freight service. The craft's course was across Southern Europe to the North African coast, thence over the ocean to Brazil. There were unfortunate delays. There was trouble with the motors. Fire destroyed one of the immense wings. But since leaving Brazil all has gone well. In a leisurely manner the boat hopped from one port to another along our own coastline and here it is.

The schedule calls for a flight to Newfoundland and then home to Germany by the way of the Azores Islands, Lisbon, the capital of Portugal, and Southampton on the English Channel. But the day has not yet arrived when an airship can depart on a transatlantic flight at a fixed date. Storms and fogs interfere. Weather conditions must be taken into account. Aviators with ambitions to reach the other side of the Atlantic are obliged as a rule to wait many days before daring to take off.

Perhaps the Do-X may be favored with satisfactory weather reports. But in any event regular schedules are at present impossible. The northern route as yet offers no hope of their practicability. When and if a passenger service is attempted, the more southern route via the Azores no doubt will be chosen. It will be noticed that the Do-X is to head that way.

CARPING CRITICS

In addressing the National Electric Light Association convention at Atlantic City, recently, by radio from his laboratory in Fort Myers, Florida, Thomas A. Edison gave inspiration to the nation in the following few words:

"My message to you is to be courageous. I have lived a long time, I have seen history repeat itself again and again. I have seen many depressions in business. Always America has come out strong and more prosperous. Be as brave as your fathers were before you. Have faith—go forward."

How insignificant do such words make the carping critics appear, who, for personal or political effect and temporary popularity, attacks American institutions which have been developed under private initiative and enterprise.

What has become of the old-time baseball fan?

How the House Gets in a Mess
Despite All That a Man Can Do
And Good Intentions

By MARSHAL MASLIN

Husbands try hard. They really do. When the family goes away for a vacation, a husband backs himself into a corner and says:

"Now this year, you big stiff, it's going to be different. This year you're going to be neat. You're going to pick things up and behave like a civilized being. You're NOT going to make a pig pen of this house while your wife's away."

And he means it. He means every word of it. And for several days he does the best he can. When he uses a dish he washes it. When he takes off a shirt he puts it in the dirty clothes bag. And every other day he makes the bed. He begins to be proud of himself—and right then he begins to slip.

He can't help it. Things sort of get the best of him. The clocks run down. He comes into a silent house at night, a house without a tick in it, and nothing's more demoralizing than that. His morale goes to pieces. He begins to be sorry for himself and that's the end of him.

He hangs his coat on the back of a chair and it stays there. He hangs two coats on the backs of two chairs and they both stay there. He leaves a dresser drawer open in the morning; it's still open when he gets back at night—no matter what time he gets in. He leaves a magazine on a chair; it never moves. He opens his mail and throws the envelopes in the general direction of the fireplace. They make a mess. It's discouraging.

A spider gets busy spinning a web. Dust collects on things. He thinks to himself, "What's the use of washing the dishes every time you dirty them? That's a waste of hot water." So he lets them collect in the sink, until he gets a bright idea, fills the dishpan with water and lets the blamed things soak. He spills a little sugar in the morning and ants get in—and get everywhere—and refuse to get out. And as long as there are ants in the house, why should he make the bed every day? In the army, at the front, he never made a bed—and when was he healthier? Why make the bed at all? . . . He takes off a shirt and throws it in a corner and does it again the next day and once a week he makes a bundle of them and sends them off to the laundry. At least once he goes off in the morning and forgets to turn off the light in the kitchen. He comes back late at night and sees it shining, hesitates, pulls himself together, goes boldly in to throw that burglar out and sheepishly realizes what he's done. On one occasion, even, he lets the radio bawl all day long.

And before he knows it, the house is in a mess and he's in so deep that he can't get out. . . . Is it his fault? Of course not. He tried to do better, he really did. But things sort of got the best of him. They did.

I'd like to write a clever line
To travel round the earth
That all who read it, rain or shine,
Would feel the glow of mirth.

I'd like to write a line of truth
So polished and so clear,
That it would hearten faltering youth
In times of doubt and fear.

I'd like to pen a brilliant bit
In verse or epigram
So keen and truly pointed it
Would puncture every sham.

But I would rather write a line
So tender and so true
That those who sorrow and repine
Would find their faith anew.

CAPRICORNUS IS THE SEPTEMBER CONSTELLATION
By Arthur DeV. Carpenter

Capricornus (water goat) is the constellation that is in the ascendancy in the evening sky of September. Were it not for the fact that Capricornus is one of the 12 constellations of the zodiac, it would not challenge much interest with the naked eye star gazer. But any constellation that is in the great highway of the sun, moon and the planets holds a distinguished place in the sky that at once gives it importance. If you continue a straight line through Vega and Altair southward, you will readily locate the westernmost star of Capricornus of third magnitude. The beginner should have his star map to assist in locating Capricornus.

A Ueeded Invention Nowadays For New Castle Pedestrians Is an Eye In the Back of the Head.

Newspaper work is pleasant and amusing as a whole, but at times it imposes duties that are bitter as gall. Families that are dear to you are shamed and heart-broken and you must add to their sorrow because the cause of it is news. A son or daughter violates the laws of God and man and is held by the state for trial. Everybody in the community knows the story and repeats it with endless variations. There are countless unfounded and untruthful rumors. Nothing the newspapers will say will make the crime greater or add to the public's knowledge of it. All the evil has been done. The fact of wrong-doing has shamed and broken the family. Talk can harm them no more. Yet when the story is printed, as it must be, the family invariably feels that it has been hurt anew. The barest recital of the facts seems an accusation and a condemnation. "The paper is against us," the family says. Yet the paper has merely told the truth as a camera does, and is equally innocent of bias. It doesn't "take sides". It doesn't consider persons. It records facts and supports truth and justice. Just what a hateful task it is when those involved are friends! It is hard to hurt a friend, Yet the newspaper man has no choice. He is like the sheriff, doomed by law and duty to hang any man the law condemns. If his best friend or his own son violates the law and thus makes news to which his readers are entitled, he must print the story. It is the pledge of his calling. And as he writes the hateful words that he must write if he would keep his honor and his self-respect, he hates his calling as a physician does when all his skill cannot save a much loved friend.

Place Among Great Leaders Given To Mrs. LaFollette

Death Of Widow Of Wisconsin Senator Brings Emphasis Upon Her Political Wisdom And Preference For Role Of Adviser In The Home

Tribute to the capacity of Mrs. Belle Case LaFollette is paid by Americans as death ends the career of the Wisconsin woman who was described by her husband, the late senator, as the counselor in his career. She has been called the founder of the Progressive movement. Her influence is credited with the achievements of what is recognized as "the LaFollette dynasty", though she refused public honors and gave her life to the home, assisting her husband and sons.

"Mrs. LaFollette found full expression for her femininity in her home," says the OMAHA WORLD-HERALD, adding that "from it sprang an influence of national, even international, importance." The World-Herald recalls that "her great husband credited her with being the true founder of the Progressive movement in this country." The HARTFORD TIMES also holds that "her contribution to the cause of progressivism and good citizenship was distinctive far beyond its demonstration in the family relation." The DES MOINES TRIBUNE-CAPITAL refers to her as "an important member of a dynamic dynasty" and "constant adviser of her husband," with the added estimate: "She lived to see many of the once-radical ideas of her husband adopted and made commonplace. Her influence will be felt for a long time and in immeasurable ways, even though she kept herself constantly in the background."

"The LaFollettes were flesh and blood practitioners of 'all for one and one for all.' They epitomized family," declares the FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM, with the further tribute to her qualities: "Mrs. LaFollette showed American motherhood how to be partner with her husband and sons in the job of conducting the affairs of a democracy. She made the effort appear so simple that it required her passing to attract public acclaim to her achievement." The BALTIMORE SUN lauds "a fine and noble woman" who was "content to remain in the background, serving not only, as many other women have, to give emotional inspiration but acute and practical advice as well." The Sun concludes: "It is pleasant to think that her eyes closed for the last time on a scene in which her two sons were brilliant leaders in the cause she did so much to create."

"She rose on eager wings," declares the MADISON WISCONSIN JOURNAL, "to catch in the distance the reflection of castles and temples in a God-made citadel of human justice and happiness. She came back to earth, to droop her mothering wings over her own little brood in the family home at Maple Bluff. Hers was a greater life because her cosmic vision could not dwarf her nesting instinct. This, we believe, is the key to the thing which most entitles her to live in history. That thing was a persistent and brave and intelligent consecration to a program designed to bring the influence of the home into the affairs of government."

"She was a woman whose love for humanity was deep and sincere and she had the qualities of leadership," avers the OSHKOSH NORTHWESTERN, while the TOPEKA DAILY CAPITAL advises that "when monuments are erected to American women in politics, hers should rise as high as any." The ROCKFORD REGISTER-REPUBLIC believes that "there was no more politically astute woman in the country," and the YAKIMA REPUBLIC records that "she always has been given credit for having brought her husband to the front, and for organizing and operating the machine which kept him there for so many years." The MIAMI NEWS feels that her death removes "one of the most effective influences of recent politics." The WORCESTER EVENING GAZETTE asserts that "she shared her husband's honors and deserved them in her own right."

"A well constructed, carefully maintained machine was behind LaFollette," states the NEW YORK SUN, "and in building and maintenance of this machine his wife worked long hours at toilsome tasks that brought no public recognition and left no picturesque memories. Mrs. LaFollette helped her husband found his political rulership of Wisconsin, helped him consolidate and maintain it. She lived to see one of her sons succeed his father in the Senate of the United States, the other follow him in the governorship of his state. She knew that she deserved much of the credit for establishment of the dynasty; and probably she never thought of what she did as anything reflecting particular credit on her."

"Her life is a shining example," according to the ROANOKE TIMES, "of the truth of oft-repeated assertions that woman's rightful place is in the home and that the right kind of woman can exercise a more potent influence on public affairs as the wife and mother of statesmen than she could hope to wield as an active participant in poltics. Belle Case LaFollette never held public office in her life. But she was an important factor in the political life of Wisconsin and the nation, nevertheless. Her passing calls attention to the prominent and useful part played in the affairs of a great commonwealth and of the republic by one of the most remarkable families of this and the preceding generation."

"When Senator LaFollette died in 1925," recalls the JANESVILLE GAZETTE, "her great work was done. Yet Mrs. LaFollette did not fail to carry on and mark out a line of travel for her sons—his sons. For by the wave of a hand or nod of the head she might have been seated in the Senate as her husband's successor. But that was not her way. The fallen torch was not for her. She commanded from headquarters, not on horseback along the battle line. When the throngs gathered to witness the unveiling of the LaFollette statue in the rotunda of the Capitol at Washington, she was content to know that it was there and that her husband's admirers and followers and others who were neither, came to see the ceremonies and listen to the eulogies that were pronounced for the man whose form sat chiseled in cold marble among other great."

"This preacher had held down the same charge for twenty-seven years, and never an encouraging word but one did he get from his congregation in all that time."

"He told me about that one word of praise with grateful tears in his eyes. He said that he was on his way home from church on Sunday night when a deacon caught up to him and grasping his hand fervently, actually said:"

"'Ah, brother, that was a beautiful text you preached from this evening!"

How do you justify yourelf for your cynical attitude?

Do you think that your experience does that?

How do you know but that "experience" is the exception rather than the rule in the matters which have troubled you?

Don't you know that the cynical attitude of yours prevents you from gaining knowledge and pleasure along many lines?

Are you wilfully cutting yourself off from more experience which might teach you a very different lesson?

It is a rule that we get out of things what we put into them.

Half-hearted service, critical high-hatted survey, brings, just such shallow return, as you now rail against.

Were you ever wholly in earnest to do your best?

Did you ever go to the bottom of anything, with single-minded justice dictating your attitude?

Your attitude is a reflection of your mind.

When you can approach things from the right angle life will explain itself in such a way that you will be certain that there is truth and beauty in the fundamentals of human experience.

Boston Reports 104 New Factories In 1931

(International News Service)

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 29.—Rapid growth of industry in metropolitan Boston was shown in a report of the bureau of commercial and industrial affairs of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, revealing that 20 new industries have been started, bringing the total number of new manufacturing companies going into business during the first six months of 1931 to 104.

The report also revealed the expansion of 15 established industries, including the building of several new manufacturing plants.

While all but a few of the 20 new industries added were of moderate size, it was pointed out that the products manufactured were widely varied. Included in the new list of products were leather finishes for the tanning industry, kitchen range burners, concentrated fruit syrups, raincoats, period reproduction furniture, toys and novelties, medical products, confectionery, men's clothing, dental woods, insecticides, soda fountain syrups, metal bridge lamps, waterproof clothing, radios and household chemicals.

A merger of four prominent paper box manufacturing companies into a new $200,000 organization with headquarters in Somerville, was also reported.

Governor Roosevelt's Plan Of Relief Given To State Legislators

Would Impose Fifty Percent Increase In Personal Income Tax For Relief

Would Raise $20,000,000 To Aid Unemployed—Hits Wealthy Citizens

By RAYMOND I. BORST
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ALBANY, Aug. 29.—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt personally transmitted to the special session of the legislature Friday a message in which he recommended a comprehensive state unemployment relief program of $20,000,000 to be financed by a fifty percent increase in personal income tax.

The Governor read his message, containing about 4,000 words, to a joint session of the Senate and Assembly in the latter chamber. The Assembly galleries were comfortably filled with spectators who applauded the various recommendations made by the governor to provide direct relief for the army of unemployed during the coming winter months.

Slap At Hoover

In delivering his plan for relief of the unemployed Governor Roosevelt took what some regarded as an indirect slap at President Hoover's handling of the problem.

"It is idle for us to speculate on actions which may be taken by the federal government," the governor said. "Just as it is idle for the purpose for which we the gathered here, to speculate about the causes of the national depression.

"It is true that times may get better; it is true the federal government may take action to eradicate some of the basic causes of our present troubles; it is true that the federal government may come forward with a definite construction program on a truly large scale; it is true that the federal government may adopt a well-thought-out concrete policy which will start the wheels of industry moving and give to the farmer at least the cost of making his crop.

Relief Is Needed

"The State of New York can not wait for that. I face and you face and thirteen million people face the problem of providing immediate relief."

Because of the fact that the state has a cash surplus of only $10,000,000 the governor was compelled to recommend new taxes in order to finance his unemployment program.

If Roosevelt's recommendations are carried out by the Republican-controlled legislature, it will mean the wealthy persons of the state will have to provide for the unemployed this winter.

MacDonald Praised By Senator Davis

Pennsylvania Senator Has Praise For Ramsay MacDonald And Scores His Foes

(International News Service)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 29.—Speaking as an individual and not in an official capacity, Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania Friday praised Premier Ramsay MacDonald and criticized his foes in the British labor party.

"In times of stress, party ambitions must yield to the promotion of the nation's general welfare," said Senator Davis, who was formerly the secretary for labor and is prominent in American labor circles.

"Judging by Mr. MacDonald's past service to labor and to his country, it seems to me he should be accorded the full support of his own party at this time.

"Despite my personal acquaintance with the labor leaders in Great Britain, I hesitate to say anything that might be considered as advice. They are earnest men and fine men over there, but I do think in this case they are wrong, and it seems to me that opposition to the new ministry is most unfortunate at this time."

Victims Of Hay Fever Subjects Of Research For A Number Of Years

Prevention Treatment Consists Of Giving Extracts Of Pollen Of Plant Causing Ill As Vaccination

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A great deal of research work has been done during the past 15 or 20 years on the prevention of hay fever.

The method most generally used is to give extracts of pollens of the plants responsible as a process of vaccination, beginning several weeks before the attack of hay fever is exepected. The first lecture I heard on this subject before a medical society was in about 1912 (I am not absolutely certain of the date.) The subject was new then, so the date represents about the period of time this research has been going on. In 1915 Cooke of New York reported on the preventive vaccine treatment in 144 patients who had hay fever.

The principle of the method depends first on finding exactly what plant causes hay fever in the particular case. In doing this the doctor can take advantage of the fact that the patient who is hypersensitive to any substance will show a reaction in the skin if that substance is introduced by a hypodermic needle into the skin. A red area soon shows up at the point of injection and grows to a considerable size depending on how sensitive the patient is.

In this way the extracts of pollens of several plants which might possibly cause hay fever are introduced into the patient's skin. Whichever one, or ones, show the most violent reactions are considered the cause of this particular person's attacks. Extracts of these pollens are made either in salt solution or glycerine and beginning with very weak solutions gradually increasing amounts of the pollen extract are given hypodermically at intervals of several days. In this way an immunity to the effects of the pollens is supposed to be built up so that when the hay fever season starts the patient will not react to the irritant.

The results of this form of treatment are variously reported. There is no doubt that in some persons it works perfectly. I know of many instances in which a course of pollen extracts has completely prevented any symptoms of hay fever for that one reason. The exact proportion of these fortunate ones is hard to say. Probably about 25 per cent—one out of four—who try the treatment get such complete relief. About an equal number get no relief at all. Of the rest—about 50 per cent of the total—there are varying degrees of relief. Some are relieved of asthma in connection with the attacks of hay fever, which is a good deal.

It is impossible to say which people will be relieved. But it may be said with confidence that if a person is not relieved in any year it is useless to attempt the method again another year. And also those who obtain relief can be pretty well assured that their hay fever attacks can be prevented in the same way every year.

The immunity only lasts for one season. The vaccination process has to be repeated every year. No permanent cure has ever been proved so far as I know, although some such claims have been made.

LOOKING BACK

IN NEW CASTLE

Of course in the good old days of a hundred or more years ago, when log cabins were the palaces of this district, the amusements had to be those things which combined usefulness with pleasure and pleasure was largely a matter of personal contact among the residents, rather than entertainment afforded by those who make a profession of entertaining others. Frequently a quilting was improvised on the same day as a log-rolling and in the evening after the outdoor work had been completed, a jolly time was enjoyed about the big old chimney, where a glowing wood fire furnished both heat and light. Furniture was not plentiful in those days and on these occasions there was seldom enough chairs and places to seat all the young men and women. On occasions like these, the young men, very gallantly at the close of a dance, would seat themselves on a chair or stool and each take a young lady on his knees and held them until the next dance. Besides the amusements that have been discussed there were rail-splittings and wood-choppings, in which the quantity of timber reduced to rails and cord-wood in a day would astonish men of the present generation. The sports and employments of those days developed a hardy, enduring type of men and women, who are responsible in a great degree for the vigor and health enjoyed by the present generation.

Winter Activities Of 'Y' Discussed

Young Men's Group, In Camp Meeting, Pledges Efforts For Season Ahead

Gathered in the scheduled "Katy Did" dining lodge of the Fred L. Rentz Y. M. C. A. camp last night were 16 leaders of the young men's and boy's departments of the local association, assembled at the call of General Secretary R. L. Meermans chiefly to discuss matters of volunteer leadership and proposed programs.

The group enjoyed mushball and volley ball during the early part of the evening and again following the delicious dinner served under the direction of Boy's Work Director William A. Thomas.

Problems confronting the Y's various club and other activities were recited to the young men by Mr. Meermans, Mrs. Thomas and Henry T. MacNichols, physical director of the association, after a short devotional period led by Mr. Thomas. All of those present, each one a representative of some leading Y organization, pledged their best to promote the contemplated season's program.

A larger number of the delegation remained over-night at the camp to discuss special outside club work with Mr. Thomas this morning.

Those participating in the conference were Jack Armstrong, Kenneth Gwin, Bruce Ewing, Alfred Owens, Robert Wilkins, Jack Lynn, James Stevenson, Don Williams, Harry Wyman, Henry Wyman, Nick George, Frank Baldwin, Paul Alford, Paul Gilbert, Stanley Mackiewcz and Walter Chernosky.

Adminishes Ex-Service Men To Use Influence For Good Government

Members of the Pershing club heard an interesting address by Judge James A. Chambers in the court house last evening, in which the organization, composed of ex-service men, was admonished to stand for the best things in government and to be constantly on the alert for those things which might tend to disrupt this nation.

The meeting was one of the most interesting yet held by the club and was attended by the largest crowd which has yet been present at the club's meetings.

Additional candidates for city and county offices were endorsed by the club last evening and a great number of new members were enrolled by the organization.

TO TEACH HYGIENE

Forty years ago the Pennsylvania legislature passed a law making it obligatory on all school districts in the state to instruct public school children in physiology and hygiene. To date this law has never been repealed says Prof. W. M. Johnson, County Superintendent of Schools who will instruct Mercer county teachers as to the text of the law.

The act makes special provision for the teaching of effects of alcohol and narcotics on the body and nerves. In many schools the old fashioned instruction of this character has been replaced with the more modern instruction along physical educational lines.

VA[illegible]ORTUNE [illegible]S TURNED OVER

(International News Service)

KENTON, N. J., Aug. 29.—A world wide search for an heir of William E. Emery, millionaire of Flemington, N. J., was officially ended when vice chancellor John E. Backs Friday directed that $325,000 held in trust for the heir be paid to Vivian E. Cornelius, husband of Jessica Brown, former follies beauty.

The decision of Chancellor Backe, halts one of the most unusual searches ever revealed in the state.

Emery, who died in 1912 leaving an estate of $3,000,000 directed that a trust fund of $650,000 be established for his daughters May and Florence. May Emery died a few years later and her half of the fund was turned over to her son, Vivian E. Cornelius. The other daughter, Florence, was secretly married in 1895 to Francis Frederick Georger. A son was born to this marriage and the infant immediately turned over to a German nurse, Sophie Landgraf, it is claimed, with instructions never to reveal his identity. It was this son who became heir to half of the trust fund on the death of his mother.

Huston Fund Will Be Probed

Disclosures In Cannon Probe To Bring New Investigation In October

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Thorough investigation into the $183,000 political fund kept by Claudius H. Huston, former Republican national chairman, in a New York bank during the 1928 presidential race—and never before reported to any governmental agency—loomed today as a result of the sensational disclosures at the Nye committee's inquiry into the political affairs of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., in that campaign.

The committee's inquiry stood in recess until next October, but its investigators will probe the Huston account, which was found in the International Trust company of New York City. The account was unearthed when a $5,000 donation was traced from Huston to Work H. Wood, the anti-Smith Democratic leader in North Carolina. Wood said he received the money through Bishop Cannon.

The committee must also take action in regard to the defiance of Miss Ada L. Burroughs, secretary to Cannon and treasurer of the Southern Anti-Smith Democrats, and J Sidney Peters, his associate and secretary of the organization. The committee may report both recalcitrant witnesses to the senate for prosecution on contempt charges The same fate faces Bishop Cannon who defied the committee a year ago.

MY NEW YORK

BY JAMES ASWELL

Central Press.

VIENNA—It was necessary to wake a stout, peasantish little man in faded blue denim jacket and dusty beret, sprawled all over the compartment of the Munich-Vienna train this morning.

He seemed to relish the intrusion little. And for an hour we played a familiar continental game. Europeans have a weakness for hermetically sealed rooms. As fast as he would shut the compartment window tight, one of us would sneak an inch or two of fresh air after the stuffiness became intolerable.

At last he rubbed his two-day stubble of beard, glared more sullenly than ever, arose and went out—to return not long afterwards a new man. He was shaven. He was smiling. His disreputable jacket had been replaced by a natty tweed coat. He entered into gay conversation with us at once.

He was, it developed, an Hungarian attorney, homeward-bound from Paris. Budapest was the loveliest, the liveliest, the most livable city in all Europe. There were the most beautiful women, the greatest courtesy, the deepest love for Americans. Why were we so stupid as to be stopping off in Vienna? Come to Budapest and he would make our stay an unbroken fiesta.

He regretted speaking so little English, but with a little French here and there we could get along. Would we mind it if the window were closed on account of the chill? It was a pity, speaking only five languages and little if any English—which we read, however, brilliantly.

* * *

PREDICTIONS

Certainly there would be another war—and soon. France, Poland, Checko-Slovakia and Roumania would fight Germany, Austria, Hungary, England and Italy. He would not commit himself on the United States—about which we ought to know better than he. He was principal owner of a powerful newspaper of Budapest and had printed such predictions already. They could not be questioned.

What political parties owned the papers for which we wrote? Was it not customary for all newspapers to espouse political figures? Why else should they exist? We must come to Budapest. There newspapers were lively with politics; the people were awake to political concerns. A friend of his had, just the other day, refused to allow a plumber to work in his house because the plumber was a member of the opposition.

VIENNESE IMPRESSIONS

There is in Vienna a vast sadness. The Viennese are a gentle, courteous folk, fond of simple pleasures and romance; they are stunned by the black gusts of unemployment, unrest and misery which have blown through their town.

But gayety is there too. And beautiful women! With the possible exception of Copenhagen, the streets of Vienna display a higher percentage of absolute knockouts than any town this side of the Atlantic. Cool, dazzling Nordic blondes and sleek-haired brunettes from the east. Here, they tell me, is the last outpost of western civilization. Some master press-agent appears to have marshalled the flower of femininity to decorate the frontier.

Gayety is here. It is, perhaps, a defiant gayety; but the gloom in the air has not communicated itself to the faces of the inhabitants in their off hours. The boulevards rustle with laughter.

* * *

FOR VISITORS WELL HEELED

For visitors—presumably well-heeled—there are the Moulin Rouge, the Kasino and the Femina, all cabarets featuring floor shows with plenty of songs in English. The Femina is the most attractive and inexpensive of the bunch. The eight or ten girls who take part in the show are the most uniformly lovely collection I have ever seen. They make Messrs. Ziegfeld and Carroll appear only so-so as pickers.

* * *

NO DPRESSION HERE

Despite the 40-odd steamship sailings to and from American ports which I understand have been canceled due to slack bookings during the last few months, there is no dearth of Americans in Vienna. And English is spoken much more widely in the central part of the town, anyway, than in the corresponding neighborhood of Paris.

The Krantz Ambassador and the Grand hotel, two of the principal havens for Americans, have been doing capacity for two months. I am glad—that we have found in this city of wistfully decaying grandeur the veritable charm which Paris undoubtedly once had and lost by being too greedy in its exploitation. The Viennese will never do that.

Arrest Struthers Youth In Slaying

Ohio Officers State 17-Year-Old Boy Admits Complicity In Holdup Death

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 29.—A 17-year-old Struthers boy, confined in an infirmary with a broken hip has confessed that he was present at the murder of Harry N. Jackson, late night manager of the Tech Dairy Products Store, Market St. Extension, Deputy Sheriff Charles Conway said this morning.

The Struthers youth, deputies report, was run down by an auto Aug. 7, two days after the murder, and was taken to Mercer County infirmary at Celina, suffering from injuries to his hip.

Conway, who has been investigating the case with Assistant Prosecutor James S. Cooper, said the youth has confessed to the sheriff of Mercer County, Ohio.

The prisoner, Conway said, insists that he did not do the actual killing, though in the eyes of the law he is equally guilty with the 16-year-old Campbell boy he says was the murderer.

A soft answer may turn away wrath, but it won't get rid of a house-to-house canvasser.—The Roanoke Times.

Glimpses Of Nature

BIRDS THAT PLY MIGRATORY AIRLANES.

By Owen Penfield Fox

Man has always been attracted by the Northern flight of the birds in spring, and their return journey in the Fall. In the Book of Job it says, Doth the Hawk fly by the window, and stretch her wings toward the south. Migration of birds has always been a mystery, and as long as time goes on it shall be discussed. Some say that the warm climate was the ancestral dwelling place of all bird life, and due to the many kind of birds certain ones had to find new places in which to rear their young. They traveled north, and south on exploration trips, and as the winter came they were driven back, impressed with the necessity of a winter, and summer home.

Birds will soon be taking the long trail south, in answer to autumns call, and I find that by September most of the birds have departed, but there are still a few stragglers that remain to challenge nippy Jack Frost.

Song birds that tarry late in the Fall loose their brilliant plumage, and we do not hear their cheerful songs. Song birds knowing their bright coloring fades as Autumn approaches seeks the deep woods, and become very shy.

When it is Maytime, and the woods are abloom with flowers, the merry Bob-o-link trills us lovely songs, but as the summer wanes he ceases to sing for his brilliant coat has changed, and shorn of his beauty he retires to the dense woods where we only get an accasional glimpse of him, and by the last of September he is gone.

Early in May when the fruit trees are laden with blossoms, the Oriole comes, his gorgeous plumage a delight to the eye. And his shrill whistled song upon the air, tells you that nesting cares are at hand, but as soon as summer lengthens into Autumn the Oriole, does not linger, and by the first of September is well on its way to its southern home.

Every one who tramps the fields in summer time surely is aquainted with the little ground sparrow, and the buzzing sound it makes as it takes to wing from right under your feet. This little midget of a bird seems loath to leave and tarries sometimes until November it bids us good-by.

As we look upon the Gold finch in summer time its coat of Golden yellow, and black wings shining strikingly we would think it was impossible for this tiny bird to stay, and brave the winter blasts. In many places the Gold finch spends the winter time, but this golden bird is not recognized, for his golden body, has changed to a drab color.

Sometimes in March when the snow is still on the ground, we will see a Blue bird flash by. He is the first arrival of our song birds, and many times I have seen him days before the Robin. But when summer days begin to shorten we shall miss their songs, and before you realize it they have slipped away like a shadow to their southern play ground. It is very rare that one sees a Blue bird after September

When one roams the woods from April to Fall, you hear song birds at their best. The song of birds change as the summer lengthens, and when one has heard such singers as the Wood-thrush, Thrasher, Warblers, Song Sparrows Blue bird, you will miss them when their songs has ceased.

I have found Meadow Larks in late November as I walk through gorgeously colored woods, but the Meadow Larks were silent, as they took short flights dipping down into the dead grass, much like young Quail on the wing.

There is one bird that sings as well in September as it does in Springtime, it is the Wood Pee-wee, and there is another bird that joins the Pee-wee in late song, and that is the Vireo, this bird keeps up his song until the first of October. Then he is missed from the woods, as he has departed for his sojourn in the sunny south.

With the chilly blasts of March the Phobe wings in from the warm south this distinguished looking bird is very busy like his cousin the Wood Pee-wee all through the summer he fills the air with his cheerful chatter. But when the mauvy colors of October are on the land, he starts on his long pilgrimage to join his bird cousins in the far off, homeland.

Former Banker Is Held As Embezzler

Man Wanted For Embezzlement Hitch-Hiked From California To Pittsburgh To Surrender

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 29.—William Lyle Stephenson, 34, of Mahaffey, Clearfield county, was in jail today in default of $5,000 bond, awaiting action of the Federal grand jury to answer charges of embezzling funds of the Mahaffey National Bank.

Stephenson, who hitch-hiked from the Pacific Coast to Pittsburgh to face a charge of having embezzled approximately $15,000, according to Federal authorities, yesterday waived a preliminary hearing before the United States Commissioner. The defendant was a former bookkeeper of the bank, upon learning a warrant had been issued for his arrest, he crossed the continent and surrendered to United States Marshal J. C. McGregor.

The farm board has arranged for the wheat farmer to get plenty of coffee to drink. Apparently no one believes the corn grower is suffering from thirst.—The Omaha Evening World-Herald.

Amateur Golfers Ready For Play In Championship

Vast Army Of Excellent Amateur Golfers Seek Title In Chicago

BEVERLY COURSE IS TOUGH ONE

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service
Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—"Plenty tough."

These words, slangy yet expressive, today epitomized the sentiment of America's finest amateur golfers after treking over the baffling, heavily trapped Beverly Country club course in "tune up" rounds for the national amateur championship which starts Monday.

For several days past they have been trying out the 6,702-yard layout and they seem to be unanimous in the belief that the course with its sprinkling of difficult par 3 and 5 holes puts a premium upon accuracy. The course presents five par 3 holes and four par 5 holes, none of which is easy. These short and long holes, interspersed with ninepar 4 holes, imparts a variety and sportiness that is bound to cause many heartaches.

Perkins Is Good

T. Philip Perkins, the former British amateur champion, and one of the favorites in this battle for the title relinquished by Bobby Jones, has been working out the last few days and he concurs in the opinion that the course is "tough". So does Harrison ("Jimmy") Johnson of St. Paul; Johnny Goodman, the star from Nebraska who edged Jones out of the 1929 championship; Lawson Little, the Pacific coast sensation and Budd McKinney of Texas, one of the low scorers in the national qualifying rounds.

Cyril Tolley, another former British amateur champion, joined the flock and will be given a starting time, a sort of added entry. He is entered from the Rye club of England. His status is similar to that of Johnny and Alaric De Forest of Great Britain. The De Forests signified their intention of entering the classic and were dispatched invitations exempting them from the qualifying round played weeks ago. Tolley's fame is international and already he is spoken of as a dangerous threat.

POLICE BELIEVE MOTHER AND THREE CHILDREN HANGED

Annabel, 9, and Harry 12, after luring the family here.

Police Open Letters

The latest sensational development "broke" this morning when police opened a packet of letters, four in all, which Powers was about to mail when he was arrested. These letters made ardent love to women throughout the country and, in one, Powers promised to visit the recipient on Monday next.

While the letters were being opened, another detail of police was rushed to a second garage which Powers had rented in Clarksburg, where a treasure-trove of clues was unearthed.

These included several pair of women's and children's shoes, burned letters, a wrist watch bearing the initals "D. P. L.," and a wedding ring inscribed "C. O. P. to D. L." Powers' alias is Cornelius O. Peterson.

Endearing Letters

The letters opened today were addressed to Miss Madge Gillikue, 129 Broad street, New Bern, N. C.; Mrs. Bessie Storrs, 116 North Clinton street, Olean, N. Y.; Mrs. Edith D. Simpson, 625 Field avenue, Detroit, and Miss Virginia D. Bell, 34 Winter street, Hagerstown, Md.

Idealistic in tone, the letter to Mrs. Simpson assured her that her "sweet letter" had been received. In it, Powers pictured himself as literally "the answer to a maiden's prayer." He deplored the fact that old men often boasted of drinking in their youth and said that he himself neither drank nor smoke. He wrote feelingly of the "dear and intimate relationship" that had existed between his own mother and father and expressed the hope that Mrs. Simpson would be able to answer "real soon." He closed with "love and kisses."

In his note to Mrs. Storrs, he stated his intention of leaving here Sunday morning and arriving in Olean "some time Sunday." He promised to wire her definitely the time of his arrival.

"Honey," he wrote, "I can't wait. I shall be happy when I can hold you close and we can begin our lives together."

The letter to Miss Gillikue, evidently the first he had written her, was of the "form-letter" variety although it breached eloquently of affectionate phrases. It enclosed a photograph, represented to be that of the writer.

Report Confession.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Aug. 29.—Harry F. Powers today confessed the killing of Mrs. Asta Eicher, wealthy Illinois widow, and her three children, police said—and then sought his jail bunk and dropped calmly into a deep, snoring slumber.

"Broken" on the rack of a merciless grilling, police quoted the "Bluebeard of the West Virginia hills" as saying:

"Yes, I did it—now for God's sake let me alone.

"I'll tell you all about it later, after I have rested and talked with my attorney."

Physically worn out, but unmoved and unworried, Powers was led to his cot and allowed to sleep—but not before police exacted a promise that he would make a "clean breast" this morning.

Seems Unconcerned.

The "Cornelius O. Pierson," romantic wooer of scores of women throughout the country via the matrimony bureau route, was utterly unconcerned over his fate. He smiled and joked as he left the inquisition chamber in the county jail—much as he had "kidded" the women who responded to the ardent love letters of this middle-aged and married swain.

Belief that Harry, 12-year-old son of Mrs. Eicher, had put up a desperate fight for life was expressed by police when examination of the boy's body revealed two well-defined depressions in his head. A hammer which police said was matted with bloody hair was belived to have been the lethal weapon employed.

Deaths of the two girls, Greta, 14, and Annabel, 9, and their mother, police said, evidently had been caused by strangulation preceded by a cruel, deliberate starvation.

Victims Starved.

Detectives voiced the theory that the victims, after being lured to the ramshackle tin and wood garage, built over an elaborate concrete subbasement, had been starved into a helpless weakness and that the killer then had choked his victims to death.

A detail of detectives was combing the garage today, seeking to reconstruct the crime. Four rooms below the ground level were comprised in the sub-basement. Each room resembled, through its stark austerity, that of a monk's cell. A grilled window, shutting out the sunlight and allowing only for the free passage of air, was cut into each room.

Authorities planned to question neighbors who told of a trunk on a touring car being delivered to the shack and reports that Powers worked around the place at night.

Long Hours of Grilling.

His breakdown followed hours of grilling and efforts to shake his imperturbable reticence. Confronted with the bodies of his victims, alleged to have been lured to their doom through a series of throbbing love letters, Powers had asserted he knew nothing of the crime, the identity of the bodies or how they were buried near his garage.

Lieut. Herman Herzog of the Park Ridge, Ill., police emerged sweating and exhausted from the "grilling room". His face was wreathed in smiles. He made the simple announcement of the terse verbal confession and sought his own bed. Herzog had worked constantly on the case for 48 hours.

Powers then was allowed to "turn in" for a few hours sleep before resumption of the questioning.

J. E. Law, Powers' attorney, was apprised by International News Service that police claimed to have obtained a confession from his client. Law evinced considerable surprise. He said:

"I left the jail at 9 o'clock last night. I do not know what occurred after I left."

The attorney said he would confer with Powers this morning.

Meanwhile, crowds continued to grow outside the jail where the prisoner slept calmly. It was not an unruly mob, however, and there were no threats of violence. Those in the throng were actuated by curiosity and sought to be near the man who had turned the eyes of the nation on their city.

Belief was expressed that Powers was an "agent" and may possibly be linked with a national matrimonial racket. Sheriff Grimm said that: "Powers may have been the killer of the gang whose intent was to prey on widows and, after slaying them, seize their property."

Murder of the most gruesome kind was perpetrated in the cement and tile dwelling at Quiet Dell, known as a garage, but which its special construction led authorities to believe was an insidious death chamber, where torture and starvation probably preceded the fiendish killing and the subsequent burial in a trench six feet underground.

Look Into History

Investigation was directed today along the line of ascertaining the history of the amazing Powers, alias "Cornelius O. Pierson".

It was learned that he had lived, at one time, near Cedar Rapids, Ia., but that his home had been made here for the last few years. He married a second cousin, Luella B. Strother, four years ago. With his wife's sister, Eva, all three lived here on Quincy street, in the Broad Oaks section of the city. The two women ran a small grocery store.

This spring Powers had rented a dwelling at Quiet Dell, six miles from here, to the Golden family. Later the family moved. Three days afterward the dwelling burned to the ground.

Powers was little known throughout this city. How he made his living no one knew. Reports of strange activities at Quiet Dell began a few months ago with the building of a garage near the place where Powers' house had burned.

Made of cement and tile, the "garage" contained four rooms below the ground level. Provision had been made, according to Sheriff Grimm, for sealing up each of the rooms. Reports of "strange activities" were frequently voiced by neighbors in the district. Once they reported a fire; another time a man driving a car with a trunk on it to the dwelling; and all the reports stated that Powers had "worked around the place at night".

How Powers stood up under the relentless grilling to which he was subjected and his reaction when he was shown the bodies of the victims at the Romine mortuary here, was told by Sheriff Grimm.

"I held him by the arm and he shuddered when he saw the bodies. Then he said: 'My God, that's terrible. My God, that's terrible.'"

"We asked him: 'Do you know these people?' But he shook his head and said 'No'.

"When we were questioning him at the county jail he admitted that he had brought Mrs. Eicher here from Chicago, but said that a man by the name of Rogers had met them in Fairmont, 26 miles from here, and that was all he knew of the matter. Later he said he brought the children here the following week."

Ill Jurist

The illness of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, dean of the United States Supreme Court, is causing much concern. The venerable jurist, who recently celebrated his ninetieth birthday, is confined to bed at his Summer home at Beverly Farms, Mass.

LOVE REUNION

The forty-fifth annual reunion of the Love family was an event of Thursday at the home of Edward Thompson on the New Wilmington-Pulaski improved highway. Seventy five persons were in attendance and spent the day there. A fine dinner was served. Plans were discussed for the observance of the fiftieth anniversary occuring in five years and preliminary plans for the event were considered. It was decided that the next annual reunion should be held at the same place and on the same day, the fourth Thursday of August 1932. The officers elected for the ensuing year were: President, Benjamin Riblet; vice-president, W. R. Campbell; secretary, and treasurer Mrs. W. R. Campbell.

Foster's Weather Forecast

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—Last days of August are expected to average above normal temperatures and below normal precipitation. Storm wave of moderate force, expected to cross continent during week centering on 30, will be a warm storm center and aside from local thunderstorms and such will be of little importance where there is sufficient surface moisture at present.

Cropweather Featuers Expected During September.

Temperatures of September are expected to average below normal in sections 7, 8 and 9 and in west half of 1, 3 and 5; above normal in east half of sections 1, 3 and 5 and in west third of 2, 4 and 6; above normal in east two-thirds of sections 2, 4 and 6; that is to say above normal in east, about normal in central and below normal in west parts of continent. Precipitation is expected to average a little below normal for the month for the continent, making a general and considerable increase after about the 15th of month; greatest increase expected in west part of continent but heavy precipitation will not be expected in northwest this month. Greatest amount of precipitation will be expected in cotton belt from central belt west to Rockies and in eastern coast states. Early harvested crops will not be expected to be materially damaged by insect pests this month, but crops harvested after about September 15 will probably experience an increased damage from rust, mould and other such insects, due to warm, wet weather. Heaviest precipitation expected near 17, 8 and 21, in order as named. Severe storms near 15 will be followed by a cold wave north and cool wave south. Moderately severe storms near 6 will cause moderately hot period. Moderate storms near 19 will cause cool period. Moderate storms near 30 and mild storms near 25 will cause warm periods. After below normal temperatures near 6 and 15 have passed, fall feeds and pastures are expected to make decided improvement and most areas be in good shape for winter crops.

On August 19, 1931, Cash No. 2 red wheat closed at Chicago at 49½ cents, Chicago September wheat futures closed at 48 7-8 and at Paris France, wheat reached $1.82 per bushel. In other European importporting countries wheat is selling at comparatively high prices. With government regulation, including prohibitive import duties, those countries, principally France, Germany and Italy, are able to keep prices of farm products at high levels regardless of price levels in exporting countries. In the news items of this same August 19 appears: American Red Cross donates $100,000 to Chinese flood relief. U. S. farm board is weighing wheat in anticipation of sending millions of bushels to China on long time credits, which may mean never. Government officers promise some relief to drought and grasshopper areas of Montana and the Dakotas at some future time. The above items are all evidence of the value of statements made through these bulletins during the past year. That real farm relief, which will also mean depression relief, will not be realized in North America until prices of farm products in North America cease to be regulated by what is termed export basis.

Sparks From New Castle Motor Club

School Year 1931-1932 To Call For Intensive Program of Safety Education.

The school year 1931-1932 will be an outstanding period in the continuing drive to promote safety through education in the schools of the country.

This statement was made today by R. W. Bolsinger, president of the New Castle Motor club, on the basis of plans made by the American Automobile association for safety activities in the school year immediately ahead.

"The high light of this program," said Mr. Bolsinger, "will be the extension of A. A. A. school boy patrols to a number of cities and towns which have not had this safety work in the past. In the 1930-31 school year, there were approximately 200,000 patrolmen enrolled in 10,500 patrol units in 1,000 cities and towns.

"In addition, A. A. A. motor clubs distributed approximately 800,000 safety posters and as many safety lessons. This activity will also be extended during the school year ahead to include rural schools and lessons are being prepared which are adapted to the rural class room."

Commenting on this national program, the A. A. A. club executive declared that it offers the answer to why accidents involving school children are steadily decreasing throughout the nation, while those involving adults are increasing. He continued:

"School and civic authorities in all parts of the country are loud in their praise of the safety work in the schools and police officers are being assigned to work with those in charge of the patrols.

"This cooperative work of the police and youngsters, through which the latter learn a greater respect for authority, in itself justifies this safety activity."

Detours.

With 62 detours and 13 half-width stretches in Pennsylvania, motorists find touring in this state unmarred and an entire season of practically no interference aside from the strictly maintenances phase, such as oil, goes into history as a remarkable year. When a detour is encountered, nine times in ten it is over an improved road. Such earth roads as must be travelled are in unusually fine shape.

The detour on route No. 8 at the Pittsburgh city line (Butler plank road) northward is lifted. Motorists will find the new road a real advantage.

McConnellsburg-Mercerburg detour on route No. 16 is lifted and motorists are enabled to see how a mountain looks with its face lifted. The old road between these two points was calculated to provide a hair-raising experience for most drivers and in wet weather or winter it was a good stretch to stay away from.

After more than a year of patient waiting motorists are free to use the link between the Lincoln highway and Emmitsburg, Md., enroute to Washington and other southern points.

"Hard boiled" drivers are not always at fault. Make the highway safer.

Things We Don't Like.

Bucking traffic.
Turns at intersections.
Head-on collisions.
Drunken drivers.
Skidding.
Asleep at the wheel.
Careless and reckless driving.

Have you changed your address? If so, notify the bureau of motor vehicles at Harrisburg at once, using form M-18.

Detour bulletins covering the United States are received bi-weekly at the Motor club.

Many of the emergency federal-aid projects are nearing completion in accordance with the government's proviso that the money be spent before September 1.

Part of the roadway in the Turtle Creek (Pittsburgh) cut off is completed. This route will be completed some time during the mid-winter.

Cleveland air races will start August 29.

New Castle fair September 16, 17 and 18.

The Saratoga races will close on September 5.

The state of Maine is not under quarantine for infantile paralysis.

The Hopi snake dancers are holding their ceremonials at Gallup, N. M., this week.

Go anywhere at any time, comfortably and safely, always have your A. A. A. card with you.

Taxi, truck and bus fatality rate decreases as U. S. motor death toll continues to soar.

Make the Highways Safer.

The letters S-T-O-P on a sign at an intersection means that—and more. Section 1014 of the motor code has been amended so that the operator of a vehicle who has stopped at one of these signs must yield the right of way to oncoming traffic.

P. S.—Membership in the New Castle Motor club gives you protection when you need it and service when you need it.

Courtesy on the road will increase the comfort and pleasure of motoring 100 per cent. Always heed the ten commandments of the highways.

1. Do not step on the gas when the other fellow wants to pass you.
2. Do not "hog" the road.
3. Do not drive away when you have hit a pedestrian or another car.
4. Do not be a road tramp.
5. Do not be a speed king.
6. Do not block the highway.
7. Do not run with one headlight.
8. Do not have your headlights out of focus.
8. Do not blow your horn if the fellow in front of you is held up on account of traffic.
10. Do not violate any rule of the highway.

Next Champ?

Will Charley Retzlaff (above), former Minnesota farmer, be the next to wear the heavyweight championship crown? Many of the leading fight experts, having seen Charley knocking out formidable opponents, are of that opinion. Retzlaff has been fighting professionally for two years and is hailed as the best heavyweight prospect to come up from the hinterlands in a decade.

Makes '31 Premiere

Colonel Mario de Bernardi, premier speed aviator of the Italian Flying Corps, pictured in the Laird biplane in which he sped 200 miles an hour, looped and rolled to his heart's content when he made his 1931 air debut in an American plane at Hicksville, L. I. Colonel de Bernardi, who will take part in the Cleveland air races, is no stranger to the U. S., as he won the Schneider Cup race in 1926, at Norfolk, Va.

Local Soldier Is Coming On Furlough

Lyman Graham, brother of Mrs. Orville Potter of Huey street, is expected to arrive here next week on a furlough. He has been stationed in the Philippines, where he was in the Ccast Artillery, for several years, but returned to the United States last spring. He has been located at Langley Field, Va., since that time.

While enroute home on the U. S. S. Grant, troopship, he assisted with the publication of The Whispering Wave, a daily bulletin, which was published aboard ship. Mr. Graham drew the illustrations for the publication.

WOMAN MOTORIST IS FINED BY ALDERMAN

Charged with operating a motor vehicle with other license plates other than the ones for which the car had been registered, Mrs. Helen Hamilton, Graceland road, was fined $25 and costs by Alderman Walter T. Hamilton this morning following a hearing on the charge preferred by Constable John W. Miller.

Believe Wealthy Jap Murdered By Blackmail Gang

Officials Probing Dissappearance Of Hisashi Fujimura, Convinced Of Slaying

WAS SHADOWED BY EXTORTIONISTS

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Aug. 29.—Hisashi Fujimura, multi-millionaire Japanese silk importer, who disappeared of the liner Belgenland, was murdered after he had been asked for a large sum of money by a gang of blackmailers, investigators said today.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Edward L. Arnow said:

"There is no doubt in my mind that Fujimura was murdered and it is reasonably certain that extortion was the motive."

Federal investigators sought two ex-convicts for questioning. They were known as William Clarke, formerly connected with a Greenwich Village speakeasy, and George Mack.

Jap Shadowed

Clarke was said by authorities to have been the owner of a costly motor boat, which he bought after it was stolen from a New York broker. James J. Collins, who is held in the Suffolk county jail on a charge of attempted extortion in connection with a scheme to "shake down" a speakeasy owner, was interviewed by investigators earlier this week.

Collins, the authorities said, had gone to Norwalk, Conn., seeking a job working on the yacht of the Japanese. Later he obtained employment on the Clarke boat.

Clarke's craft was claimed to have been seen cruising near Norwalk, where Fujimura had an estate. It was also said a gang of blackmailers had shadowed the importer at Norwalk for weeks, learning his habits and friends.

That smiles are boomerangs shaped on the lips.

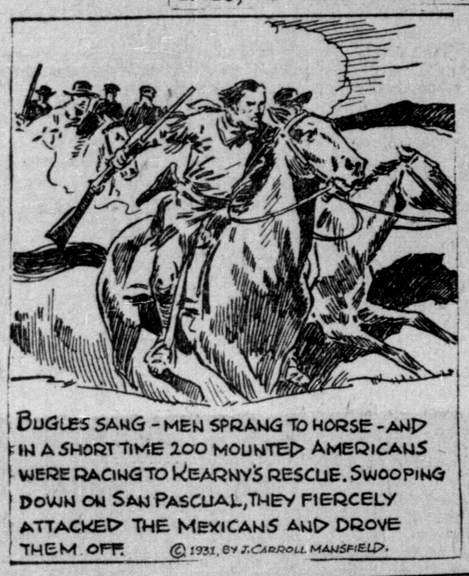
Kit Carson—42. Kearny Rescued

ONCE PAST THE MEXICAN SENTRIES, THE THREE RUNNERS SEPARATED TO BE SURE THAT AT LEAST ONE OF THEM WOULD GET THROUGH TO SAN DIEGO. WHILE CRAWLING THROUGH THE ENEMY'S LINES, CARSON HAD LOST HIS BOOTS, WHICH HE HAD TIED AROUND HIS NECK, AND HAD TO RUN THE 40 MILES IN HIS BARE FEET.

THE NEXT AFTERNOON KIT HOBBLED INTO SAN DIEGO, HIS FEET RAW AND BLEEDING, AND GASPED OUT THE NEWS OF KEARNY'S PLIGHT AT SAN PASCUAL. LIEUTENANT BEALE AND THE INDIAN ALSO REACHED STOCKTON'S LINES, THE FORMER EXHAUSTED AND DELIRIOUS.



BUGLES SANG - MEN SPRANG TO HORSE - AND IN A SHORT TIME 200 MOUNTED AMERICANS WERE RACING TO KEARNY'S RESCUE. SWOOPING DOWN ON SAN PASCUAL, THEY FIERCELY ATTACKED THE MEXICANS AND DROVE THEM OFF. © 1931, BY J. CARROLL MANSFIELD.

THE RESCUING FORCE ARRIVED JUST IN TIME, FOR THE BELEAGUERED DRAGOONS WERE SUFFERING GREATLY FROM LACK OF FOOD AND WATER. - KEARNY PROCEEDED TO SAN DIEGO, WHERE HE JOINED COMMODORE STOCKTON ON DECEMBER 12, 1846.

Wingerd-McFate Reach Finals In Tennis Tourney

Lowell H. Wingerd Defeats Francis Sowersby And McFate Beats Carroll

SEMI-FINALS IN DOUBLES MATCHES

Lowell H. Wingerd, Chautauqua Lake champion, and resident of New Castle, and Attorney Joseph McFate will battle it out for the Senior singles championship at the New Castle Field Club next Tuesday evening at 5:30 o'clock. Both boys have waded through a list of well known tennis stars to reach the top spot. The city-wide tennis tourney is fast drawing to a close.

The doubles semi-finals matches are being played today at the Field Club. The finals will be played on Monday. In the Junior doubles Wilson and Harris will play Must and Viggiano at 3 p. m. The Senior doubles will follow at 5 p. m.

Wingerd in Form

Last night at the Field Club courts Wingerd defeated Francis "Red" Sowersby in three straight sets 6-2, 6-3, 6-1. Sowersby extended Wingerd in almost every set, many of the games going to deuce. Wingerd's terrific smashes over the net were hard for Sowersby to return. Sowersby was a little erratic in his service with Wingerd just a little steadier.

Attorney McFate had a tough time with Carroll the first set 6-4, and then McFate stepped out and took the next two with ease, 6-0, 6-1.

McFate's chopping game had Carroll worried. McFate played a steady game. The tennis fans are looking for the Westminster Tennis coach to give Wingerd a tough battle for the championship.

In the Senior doubles DeSantis and England defeated Cassalandra and Cassalandra 6-3, 7-5. Wray and Pearson defeated Acquivia and Lewis 6-4, 6-2.

Juniors Ready Finals

In the Junior doubles Must and Viggiano defeated Emery and Offutt 6-3, 6-1 and then defeated Nunn and Manor 6-0, 6-2. Also Wilson and Harris defeated Brinko and Brinko 6-1, 6-4.

No doubt a large gallery will watch the tennis finals at the Field Club. Sears, Roebuck and Company sponsors of the tourney are very well pleased with the turnouts to date. The various matches at Boyles George Washington and the Field Club have drawn big crowds. The work of Allen Garvin and Hymie Levine has been fine. These boys have had charge of the various matches that have been played. Tully Caiazza has directed the tourney details.

ALLIGATORS GOING HOME
(International News Service)

GROTON, Conn. Aug. 29,—Two alligators, two feet long, are probably making their way south. They once belonged to Howard C. Russ, a New Yorker who has a summer home here. Mr. Russ was willing to pay a reward for their return.

Kennedy Shoots Below-Par Golf At Muny Course

Hackett Kennedy, Well Known New Castle Golfer Has 35 For Nine Holes

Hackett Kennedy, one of the best known New Castle golfers hung up a below-par record at the Municipal course last night when he turned the first nine holes in a 35. The par for the first nine in 37. Kennedy parred every hole with the exception of the long 616 number 6 hole and he took an eagle 4 on this hole which is a par 6. One of the very few par 6's found anywhere in the country.

Kennedy was driving them wide and handsome and his brassie was working like a clock. In making his sensational eagle, Kennedy was on the number 6 green in three and sunk his first putt.

Gene Veri, another well known golfer who accompanied Kennedy had a 40 for the first nine which is good golf at the Municipal course. Veri witnessed the eagle made by Kennedy.

The Municipal course is in excellent shape. The greens are fast and the fairways in fine condition.

Make Final Preparations For Westminster Football Camp

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Aug. 29.—Final preparations for the opening of the Westminster College football camp at the college were made yesterday and this morning, and coaches and officials are ready for the influx of some 50 candidates for the grid team Monday afternoon and evening.

The playing surface of the field is in good shape, the grass has been cut, and preparations have been made to put in yardage lines. Materials for the steel wire fence to surround the field arrived yesterday, and work will start on that project the first of the week.

Carpenters completed yesterday the heavy line-charging machine from blueprints furnished by Coach Lawther. The new tackling dummy has also been installed and is ready to be used.

Construction of bleachers will take place next week when the fence is completed, and a press box to accommodate 12 newspapermen will be built above the top tier of seats on the 50-yard line.

More than 50 men have been invited to camp, and it is certain that at least 50 will report. The men will be quartered in the Kappa Phi Lambda, Theta Upsilon Omega, Delta Phi Sigma, and Phi Pi Phi fraternity houses. The training table will be in Browne hall, freshman dormitory.

Many athletes from Lawrence and Mercer counties are among those who will report. Men will report Monday evening, and first drills take place Monday morning. For two weeks and one-half, until the opening of college, there will be two drills each day. After September 16, but one drill each day, in the afternoon, will be possible.

Lawther will be assisted by Earl "Miz" Dart, New Castle, assistant coach; Stephen "Jiggs" Havrilla, North Braddock, backfield aid; Jack Hulme, team trainer; and Louis Peresenyi, grad who will aid Jack Hulme in details of training.

Couette-Gruver In Six Rounder

Infected Ear Causes Gray's Removal From Monday's Fight Card

JOHNNY JENNINGS TO BATTLE CARNEY

Jackie Powers of Youngstown, will meet Jackie McGann of Pittsburgh, at 114 pounds and Marshall Couette of Cleveland, will oppose Al Gruver of Akron, at 128 pounds in the two six round battles Monday night at the bowl. Gruver and Couette were elevated to the six round bout when James Dygert, manager of Homer Gray, acting on the advice of his physician, yanked Gray out of the scrap with Bill Donnelli.

It appears from Mr. Jim's story today that a few evenings ago what appeared to be a small pimple in Homer's ear gave him a little trouble. The next evening he adorned his head in a 'gear' and went through a couple of rounds with a training mate.

That made the irritation worse and when it was reported yesterday he had a "boil in his ear" Dygert sent him to a local physician for the boxing commission and he said he did not believe Homer would be fit for action Monday, hence the Couette-Gruver substitution.

Here's Jennings.

Couette and Gruver fought one grand slambang four rounder here and now that they've been elevated to the post formerly held by Gray and Donelli they can be expected to put on the Big League stuff.

In order to compile the six bouts the wires were pulled and Johnny Jennings, favorite here will hop into the ring with Larry Carney or some other good 140 pounder.

Jennings has been training for several weeks and he is in fine fettle. He is one of the few to have fought Frankie Bojarski without going down. He gave Frankie a great fight at the bowl when they both were kids.

Merle Gibson is ready for Clyde Merriner, Johnny Banko is prepared to fling punches at Young Terry and Ray Ritchie hopes to be able to dump Eddie Elridge in their return bout.

The first bout will commence at nine o'clock, daylight saving time.

GOLD SCALES USED AGAIN

CUSTER, S. D. Aug. 29,—Ancient and timeworn gold scales, used extensively in the '70s to weigh prospector's "dust" have been placed in use again by the Custer county bank. For the first time in decades gold is being brought in daily by prospectors working the diggings along French creek, where the first discovery was made in 1874. Unemployment has caused hundreds of men to turn to panning gold in the Black Hills as a means of earning a living.

Five Gridders Are Injured Friday

Knee And Leg Injuries Occurr In Practice Session At Lincoln Field

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 29.—A most peculiar incident occurred at Lincoln field Friday afternoon as five valuable grid candidates were rather seriously injured in succession during a practice period.

The squad of 45 had been doing some clipping and blocking under the direction of Coach Robert V. Ingle when the accidents occurred. Mike Dudick hurt an old injury when the cartilage in his right knee was knocked out of place. Frank Vanderillo received an injury of the same type and had to be carried off the field. This had kept the former out of many games last year. Both are good varsity possibilities. Chuck McCloskey also received an injury to his knee and is compelled to take a rest. Art Showers hurt his leg rather seriously and Tom McKim was completely knocked out and it was some time before he was revived. McKim is a varsity man.

Record Broken At Wiley Hill Show

Connoquenessing Valley A. C. Is The New Name Selected For The Organization

ELLWOOD CITY, Aug. 29.—Each weekly fight show at Wiley hill sees another record set. Those in charge of the show cannot seem to add enough bleachers. A turn out between 2000 and 25000 witnessed the card last night. The crowd began to come before the bleachers were up and as a result the show was a half hour late in starting.

The card for last night included 8 boxing bouts and three wresting bouts. Two of the wrestling matches was staged by ladies who drew a roar of applause from the audience. A pair of 20 year olds staged one bout and a pair of 16 the other. Young Arket, 135 of Wampum scored a technical knockout over Young Masso of Koppel in the main bout.

The new name for the show was suggested by William S. Haddock, president of the Allegheny Mountain association of the A. A. U. The local organization headed by Lloyd Steckman will be in charge of A. A. U. activities in Zelienople, New Castle, and the Beaver Valley. Steckman is commissioner for Beaver county. Indoor shows will be conducted through out the fall and winter it was announced by Steckman. A suitable place is already in mind to stage the affair.

DOG AND BOYS, BEST SHARK

(International News Service)

BOSTON, — Whether a shark can swim over a whale has been debatable, but a chow-collie dog, called Tex, aiding two boys—John Burns, 20, and Louis J. Quersher, 20, both of Roxbury—bested an eight-foot shark of savage proportions in the shallow waters of Fort Point Channel, and brought it ashore. For more than an hour the battle raged. The boys, knee deep in the water, fought with stones and sticks, and the dog and the shark matched teeth. One boy was thrown head over heels by a flip of the finny tail. But the dog got a firm hold on the fish's stomach. Finally, the combined efforts of the dog and boys tired the shark, and, beaten, it was dragged ashore.

Hickory Heights Flower Show Will Be Held Sept. 11

The Hickory Heights Parent-Teacher association is inaugurating its first Flower show this year and the display will be made Friday evening, September 11, in the school building.

The entries this year had to be limited by the association on account of their space and the flowers chosen by the Garden club in the spring will be shown; they are cosmos, gladioli, double marigolds, single marigolds, asters, zinnias, calendulas, scabiosa, annual larkspur, snapdragons, verbenas, everlasting flowers, bachelor buttons and petunias.

There must be eight blooms of the flowers shown, with the exception of the everlasting flowers, which requires 18, but they may be mixed.

In the vegetable line exhibits may be made of three ears corn, one pint lima beans, four beets, four carrots, four tomatoes, 1 cabbage, four peppers, three winter radishes, one pumpkin and six potatoes.

Flowers and vegetables may be entered, or flowers alone, but the vegetables cannot be entered without flowers.

The members of the association are working hard to make this opening flower show a success and are asking the co-operation of those who intended taking part in the Garden club show, which was called off this year.

SPYING ON SPORTS

BY WILLIAM RITT

Central Press Sports Editor

Wow! Right on the hip pads! And did they hurt!

Football, which does a lot of kicking back and forth in a season; in fact, is based on the principle of nudging an inflated leather oval over and around a field, has suddenly found itself the kickee.

The kicker is one William A. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray. And what makes his well-placed and extremely accurate boots smart the more is the fact that "Alfalfa Bill" is governor of the sovereign state of Oklahoma.

The governor of any state is a very important fellow in the eyes of state university presidents, faculties, football coaches and players.

• • •

Governor Murray, in keeping of the best football traditions, has not landed one kick but quite a number.

Boot No. 1—"There is not much difference," the governor is quoted as saying, "between a football game and a common fight."

Ouch! But, O. K., governor. The game can stand that one.

Boot No. 2—"I won't go to any games," the governor continues.

Well—that may be all right, too.

Boot No. 3—"If a man," concludes Oklahoma's chief executive, "is not busy and wants to be bored he should attend a football meeting."

Hey, there, Mr. Coach, is your face red?

• • •

However, here is the unkindest cut—er, kick, of all:

Governor Murray would up his football speech by saying that if state school athletic appropriations were not reduced he would veto them.

There's the kick that has Old Man Pigskin down on the ground bellowing for time out. The University of Oklahoma and Oklahoma A. and M. now face tough Big Six and Missouri Valley conference schedules with sports departments appropriations cut in half.

All this wouldn't worry followers of state school teams in other states if it were not possible that other governors, taking the hint from "Alfalfa Bill," may be planning to follow suit.

• • •

While football in many state schools more than pays its way, reduction in athletic appropriations throws an even greater burden on the game because the deficit in other sports may be larger through loss of patronage due to lack of sufficient funds for the best coaching talent and equipment.

Anyway, Governor Murray has given the Oklahoma state school teams a point which will interest out-state football fans this year. It will be interesting to see how these Oklahoma elevens, operating on a depression basis, fare this fall.

• • •

Mr. McGraw is out shopping for his 1932 team, but it's a safe bet he won't be a customer at any of the Cardinal chain stores.

• • •

Four Fordham football prospects are Modzeleski, Szeskowski, Bonitski and Szysmanski. Undoubtedly the Rams plan to put the skis under the opposition.

• • •

A pessimist is a fellow who thinks tennis balls are made of old rubber or phoney checks to get the proper rebound.

It's awful to think how many Americans lost their money at those wicked European gambling places when they might go to Hot Springs or Reno.

Move To Organize Relief Donations Of Postal Forces

City's Post Office To Act On Washington's Request, Crawford Says

Postmaster Edwin Crawford declared today that all employes of New Castle post office will be given full opportunity to share directly in the community's relief program of the coming winter, co-operating along a plan mapped out by First Assistant Postmaster General Arch Coleman at Washington.

The postmaster quoted from an order issued by the department chief as follows:

"In view of the present economic conditions, it becomes the plain duty of all those employed to make such contributions as circumstances will permit to community and civic funds created by responsible committees for the purpose of relieving distress due to unemployment.

"In communities where such contributions are being requested postmasters should organize a committee of postal employes representative of the various groups who will be permitted to solicit their associates on government time."

Action Here Later

Definite steps locally will not be taken until later, Mr. Crawford said. He plans to name a local committee to direct the solicitation among the employes.

The instructions of the assistant postmaster general were concluded with this statement:

"It is hoped that postal employes will be as generous as others in like circumstances and assume their full share of the responsibilities with which the American people are now confronted.

The order made clear that no solicitation at the post office by outside agencies would be permitted. Mr. Coleman set April 1, 1932 as the expiration date for the instructions forwarded to all offices simultaneously.

Interest Is Held In Poultry Tour

Business and pleasure will be combined in the annual poultrymen's tour of poultry raisers who will gather for an inspection trip on September 2.

While poultrymen from all of western Pennsylvania will participate in the tour which will have state-wide significance, the most interesting part of the tour for Lawrence county poultrymen will be on Wednesday, September 2, when the group will leave Butler at 8 o'clock in the morning, when the party will proceed to the farm of Thomas Mack, near West Sunbury, where 7,500 laying birds will be housed this fall.

The next stop will be at the farm of Ehman at Allison Park in Allegheny county, where nearly 1,000 birds are trap-nested each year and where particular attention is given to the breeding for increased egg production. The third stop will be at the Treesdale farm, Mars, Pa. The tourists will invade Lawrence county next and stop at the Jordan game farm to see and observe praetices in pheasant production.

From the game farm the party will proceed to Conneaut Lake for an outing.

FREIGHT FORCE TO GO TO ESPYVILLE

Members of the staff of the Pennsylvania railroad freight office here will go to Espyville in a group on Wednesday, September 2, for a corn roast at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Moore. Mr. Moore is a retired cashier of the office.

The wives and families of the employes will accompany them.

TIMES like this no one means to be wasteful yet the most flagrant form of wastefulness is to withdraw from use things that can still render service and economy to some one. When you do so you forego the cash you can obtain from them by resale and you deny others of the practice of thrift that arises from making use of things they can buy and utilize without paying the "first hand" price.

Tokyo Reception For Lindberghs Today Gorgeous

Prince Iyesato Tokugawa Heads Four Hundred Americans and Japs In Reception.

By JAMES R. YOUNG
International News Service Staff Correspondent

TOKYO, Aug. 29.—Four hundred distinguished Americans and Japanese, headed by Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, head of the oldest and most nobile line in Japan outside of the imperial family itself, gathered at the famous Maple Club here tonight to honor Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh at a lavish banquet.

It was the first opportunity that Japanese society had to pay homage to the distinguished flier and his wife, as most previous entertainments provided for the Lindberghs had been of an official nature.

It proved the most brilliant function that had yet been staged in honor of the flying couple.

Plan Reception

Tomorrow the Lindberghs will attend a reception given by the American Association. Later they will attend a celebration staged by the city of Tokyo, and will be the guests of Baron Mitsui, well-known in Japanese official and social life, at a banquet in the evening.

The Lindberghs' plans after they leave Tokyo are still in abeyance. They planned to spend several weeks in China, and reports were current they might visit Moscow at the invitation of the Soviet government.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

School Days Part Child From Mother

Tactfully Weaning Tot From Parent Teacher's Task

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

Yesterday we considered with the teacher the problem which faces her with the child who on his first day in school had never been weaned from his mother. We considered the teacher's task in dealing tactfully with the mother of such a child. A few more words on this subject to the teacher.

In case the mother cannot be persuaded to go home at once and leave the child, better let her linger without making her feel she is herself a spoiled child; treat her with proper deference and courtesy. If she thinks she does not dare leave the child, and stays through the first session or first day, she may be convinced that the child is learning to adjust himself, when she will be more ready to leave him the following morning.

* * *

It may happen, however, that while the mother is present he will stick close to her and will not join in the school of activities at all. In that event, it may be advisable for the mother, at the close of the first session, to go home with the child, but advised to work for about a week at home weening the child from her, not hurrying him back to school until results are in evidence.

Persuade her to neglect all things else, to attract several other children of the age of her child to her home to play with him; to absent herself from the child for several hours a day, leaving him, if possible, with a caretaker other than a member of the famly. Advise her to persuade, even hire, if necessary, some of the children of her child's room at school to come play with him, and particularly to come to her home to go along to school with him when he first goes again.

Try to convince this mother that she has an opportunity to make this child more independent, and show her quite in detail and in a sympathetic manner how she can do so. Your temptations will be to drop reminders of her own errors and delinquencies. Vigilantly guard yourself against any such suggestions. Help the mother to get her mind off her failures and to turn her attention upon a very definite program to build up in the child more self-reliance, and in herself, therefore, a habit of letting him get along without her help or presence.

* * *

All too well you know the cost of correcting such difficulties. Your biggest service is in helping to prevent them. If you have made the parents of your children feel free to come see you often and if, when they have asked you for advice on all sorts of matters, even about the babies at home, they were convinced that you cared, were eager to be helpful; that you had a deep insight into their problems at home, and that you could give advice that worked—then you will have won a very powerful position from which you may be able to do more than any other person in the world, to make those parents your allies in cultivating self-reliance in your pupils and those children at home still too young for school.

You are grateful, of course, to the Parent-Teacher association for developing the summer-round-up program, aimed to have every child on entering school for the first time, as nearly fit physically as possible. Perhaps you could pass on a word to the gracious volunteer parents in this noble work, urging them also to strive to have the child prepared with right social and mental attitudes.

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

You can't leave a game flat on its back for two years and then go back and pick it up in one afternoon. You couldn't do that with a saxophone, and it goes for golf. Which accounts in part for the weird shooting Friday evening.

Some time ago, nearly two seasons back we gave up golf in favor of rakes, and hoes and paint brushes. Since that time the only golf played has been around the lunch table, listening to alibis. But yesterday the old virus blazed out again and evening found us out on Castle Hills, batting away at par, but seldom achieving it.

Soft hands, awkward grip, poor stance and lack of distance judgment were only a few of the things that ruined it. And somehow the clubs wouldn't get back of the ball properly. A club that used to be good for 250 yards from the tee seemed to begrudge 175 yards last night.

Some of the roads taken over by the state on August 15th are already beginning to show some signs of the change. Many of them have been surveyed, and quite a number have had a little work on them. It will be some time before they have all of them taken over, but working them is going to help them no little.

The avalanche of calls and cards at homes this election has the housewives up in arms. Women on the North Hill claim they are hours back of the daily working schedule answering the doorbell, and that every morning sees a bundle of cards advertising the various candidates for office.

Two weeks from next Tuesday, it will all be over and the cards will come in handy for jotting down memorandums.

Suspect Negro May Have Committed Some Big Crime

Baltimore And Ohio Police Work To Solve Mystery Of Rings In His Possession

In the Lawrence county jail, there is a negro, who is known as Jesse Hemingway and came originally from Vaden, Miss., who is to be sentenced presently on the charge of carrying concealed weapons.

It is not the fact that he had a gun when arrested August 2, at 5:20 a. m., at New Castle Junction, while riding in a gondola car in an eastbound freight train of the Baltimore and Ohio, that is perplexing the local authorities and also B. and O. Lieutenants of Police Karl Wright and his assistant officers W. C. Yokes and H. R. Dodds, but the fact that sewed in the pocket attached to top part of an old pair of pants, which he had under all his other clothing, was found two ladies rings which have been found to be of great value.

The rings are older style yellow gold mountings indicating the probability of them being keepsakes or heirlooms. In one there are three large diamonds, and in the other two large diamonds with a large pigeon blood ruby between. The latter ring is especially valuable and both are worth several thousand dollars it has been found, according to Lieutenant Wright.

One of the rings shows indications of possibly having been forced or pulled from the finger on which it was worn by the way it is bent. Hemingway claims he found them while walking along the highway near Kent, O. just prior to being arrested here by the B. and O. officers as a trespasser. He claimed also that he had worked for a farmer near Kent. This and the fact that he is really from Vaden, Miss., have been established but the authorities are still of the impression that in some way, there is a possibility of a crime of more than ordinary character connected with possession of the rings by Hemingway.

START OF FLIGHT AT HARRISBURG

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Aug. 29.—A 7,000-mile flight from York, Pa., to Rio De Janiero, in an airplane being perfected here, is being planned by Martin Jensen, trans-Pacific fliers, and Charles H. D'Ardussey, of York. Jensen announced here Friday after a test flight of the plane.

No definite date has been set for the take-off, according to Jensen, but the flight will be made in seven daily jumps after leaving York. Jensen will pilot the plane, he said, and D'Ardussey, an army pilot and former President of South America, will act as navigator.

The plane in which the proposed flight will be made has been developed here by Jensen and F. L. Geary, of this city, who did most of the designing. The craft is a two-place all-metal biplane with a 120 horsepower motor and can do 145 miles an hour, according to the designer. An unnamed South American Government, Geary and Jensen said, has already bid for the manufacturing rights and expects to use the plane for its military forces.

Jensen, who placed second in the Dole flight to Hawaii, expects to take off tomorrow for Cleveland where he will enter the plane in the National Air races.

Find Bus Too Wide, Driver Arrested

State Motor Patrol Makes Arrest Of Greyhound Bus Driver Near Butler

BUTLER, Aug. 29—The first prosecution in Butler county under the provision of the current motor code enacted by the last legislature which limits the width of motor venicles, occurred in Alderman E. P. Peffer's court this morning, when Floyd C. Shotmaker, 3619 West 46th street, Cleveland, driver of a Greyhound bus, north-bound through Butler, was adjudged guilty of violating the act and fined $10 and costs making a total of $12.25.

The big motor bus was stopped by Sergt. J. A. Blair of the local highway patrol, on the Plank road south of Butler, and was found to be beyond the leagal width. Shoemaker was charged with operating a motor vehicle on the public highway that exceeded a total maximum width including load thereon, of ninety-six inches.

License plates were removed from the coach by the officers. Before it can be removed by the company it will be necessary for it to procure a special hauling permit.

POST OFFICE STAFF AT LAKEWOOD TODAY

For the first time in a number of years, the entire personnel of the local post office staff will assemble in the out-of-doors at Lakewood beach this afternoon for a corn roast and general social affair. Nearly 200 are expected.

The program will commence with sports this afternoon at 3 o'clock, continuing with a dinner in the evening and dancing later on.

We are not sure whether the six-hour day and the five-day week would work or not. We would be willing to have them treid out in an experimental way on congress when it meets this winter.—The Yakima Daily Republic.

U.B. Thrifty says-

Your Money Can Earn 30 Per Cent Interest
The Story is This:—
Mrs. A. buys an article for $75.00 on "installments" payable monthly, because it is so "easy" to pay that way, having a year to pay for it.
Mrs. B. prefers to pay cash and instead of buying now opens an account at the DOLLAR SAVINGS ASSOCIATION, paying $1.50 per week for 50 weeks and gets 5% interest on her money, equalling $1.57.
She then takes her check which she gets at the end of the 50 weeks and makes her purchase, and because she pays cash she gets a discount of $7.50.
This saving plus the interest on her savings nets her over 30% interest.
Result—Thrifty Mrs. B. has $9.07 extra to spend while Mrs. A. has none.
Thrifty folks save their money with us and get 5% interest on their money.
